“As doctors, we need to show our patients we're interested in them. That we're aware of their needs and that we understand and care about them.”

About Juan B. Ojeda, MD

Dr. Ojeda believes in the importance of listening. That's why he counts playing his keyboard and saxophone among his favorite things to do when he's not at work. It's also why he takes the time to listen carefully to his patients. "As doctors, we need to show our patients we're interested in them. That we're aware of their needs and that we understand and care about them."
