“I feel it is important to engage with patients throughout their visit. I try to address all their medical and social needs in addition to their health issues.”

About Raudel Garcia, MD

Dr. Raudel Garcia is an experienced physician specializing in venous and lymphatic disease as well as primary and urgent care. He loves being able to combine art and science and tackle new challenges every day while also helping people. Dr. Garcia feels it is important to engage with patients throughout their visit. “I try to address all their medical and social needs,” he says. In addition to assisting patients with their health issues, Dr. Garcia likes helping patients “navigate the complexity of the current healthcare system.”

In his spare time, Dr. Garcia loves spending time with his family, friends, and dogs. He also loves listening to music and spending time outside. He particularly enjoys fishing and working in his garden.
