

“I chose this profession to help others achieve better health and quality of life, especially our seniors.”

About Daniel Leon, MD

Dr. Daniel Leon is a physician who specializes in preventative medicine. “I chose this profession to help others achieve better health and quality of life, especially our seniors,” he says. Dr. Leon strives to provide personalized care by learning about his patients’ families and personal lives, in addition to their health concerns. If Dr. Leon could make any changes about healthcare today, he would prioritize the value of care and reduce patient volume. “Whenever I can deeply impact the health and wellbeing of any patient, it drives me even more to keep helping people in need,” he says.

In his free time, Dr. Leon enjoys doing mechanical work on cars and fishing. He also loves spending time with family and friends.
