

“I realized that helping others was the greatest way to live in this world, and I felt it was my calling.”

About Rafael Nones Pena, MD

Dr. Rafael Nones Pena’s interest in medicine began as a teenager. “I realized that helping others was the greatest way to live in this world, and I felt it was my calling,” he says. His favorite part of his profession is “positively influencing others to pave a path for their well-being.” He values honesty and open communication. He explains, “I believe everyone is unique, and the more you know someone, the easier it is to find ways of working together on mutual goals.” He adds, “It is all about being present with care, compassion, and curiosity.”

Dr. Pena considers himself “a family guy” and can be found spending time with his family in his free time. He also enjoys traveling, learning, and teaching.
