

“I am trying to help them understand their bodies and their health, while giving them a sense of hope that they will get through it fine with our help and guidance. ”

About Rana Siddabattuni, MD

Dr. Rana Siddabattuni’s dedication to fighting the HIV epidemic and enjoyment of helping his college friends better understand their medical conditions led him to healthcare. He loves educating and empowering patients. “I am trying to help them understand their bodies and their health, while giving them a sense of hope that they will get through it fine with our help and guidance,” he explains. He likes getting to know patients beyond “the data inside the medical chart” and describes his ideal healthcare model as one that allows him to “spend more time bonding with patients.” “

When he’s not caring for patients or catching up on sleep, Dr. Siddabattuni can be found traveling, visiting museums, or singing karaoke.
