“It is important for me to see each patient as a unique individual with needs that go beyond what is addressed during clinic visits.”

About Rosette Charles, MD

Dr. Rosette “Rose” Charles is dedicated to “addressing healthcare inequities” and loves “making patients feel cared for.” She elaborates, “I think that many patients, particularly in underserved communities, have lost faith and trust in the medical community […] When a patient knows that I care and that their doctor sees things through, they feel safe and open up.” She actively listens to patients’ concerns and enjoys learning about their lives. “It is important for me to see each patient as a unique individual with needs that go beyond what is addressed during clinic visits,” she says.

Dr. Rose loves cooking and spending time in nature in her free time. She is also an avid reader and enjoys visiting Dominica, where she was born.
