“I chose the senior population as they have multiple conditions that I can help with, and they are often an overlooked population.”

About Jim Allan Torres, M.D.

Dr. Jim Allan Torres’s combined interest in science and helping others led him to a career in medicine. “I chose the senior population as they have multiple conditions that I can help with, and they are often an overlooked population,” he says. He strives to care for both his patients’ physical and behavioral health. He encourages patients to be “an active and aware participant in their care.” He believes in prevention and is committeed to helping patients find the most cost-effective options. “Every patient has family, and I give every patients the respect and care I would want my own family member to have,” he explains.

Jim loves spending his free time with family. He also enjoys photography and watching sports.
