“Seniors deserve to be seen as whole individuals — not simply as a diagnosis.”

About Yvon Petiote, MD

Dr. Yvon "Dr. P" Petiote was inspired to pursue medicine by a desire to make a meaningful difference in people's lives — especially during their most vulnerable moments. "Being able to listen, provide reassurance, and help someone feel better physically and emotionally is deeply rewarding to me," he says. He chose to work with the senior population because he values the wisdom, resilience, and life experiences older adults bring. "Seniors deserve to be seen as whole individuals — not simply as a diagnosis," he says. His personal experience caring for his own aging parents has deepened his patience and compassion, making him a uniquely understanding advocate for older adults.

Dr. P builds relationships through genuine listening, "when patients know they can trust me and feel that I genuinely care about them as individuals, they are more comfortable communicating openly," he says. He believes the greatest impact often comes in the small moments — easing a fear, helping a patient better understand their health, or watching someone leave with more confidence and hope than when they arrived.

When not with patients, he enjoys jogging, biking, traveling, and volunteering in church and community activities.
